DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

1. Claims 1,2, 21 and 23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hayden, U.S. Pat. No. 6,018,771.

1. As to claim 1, Hayden teaches method, comprising:

establishing a connection from a configuring device to the network device utilizing an unassigned network address for the network to which the network device is attached irrespective of whether the network device is attached to a network local to or remote from the configuring device (item 12, fig. 1; abstract; col. 1, line 65 – col. 2, line 7).

2. As to claim 2, Hayden teaches method, further comprising configuring the network device utilizing the established connection (col. 3, lines 17-34).

Art Unit: 2182

3. As to claim 21, Hayden teaches system, comprising:

a network device (any one of items 30a-30m; fig. 1); and means for establishing a connection from a configuring device to the network device utilizing an unassigned network address for the network to which the network device is attached irrespective of whether the network device is attached to a network local to or remote from the configuring device (item 12, fig. 1; abstract; col. 1, line 65 – col. 2, line 7).

4. As to claim 23, Hayden teaches computer program product, comprising:

computer-readable program code embodied in a computer-readable media

(inherent in items 12 and 20a; fig. 1), the computer-readable program code comprising:

computer-readable program code which establishes a connection from a configuring device to the network device utilizing an unassigned network address for the network to which the network device is attached irrespective of whether the network device is attached to a network local to or remote from the configuring device (item 12, fig. 1; abstract; col. 1, line 65 – col. 2, line 7).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 10 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hayden, U.S. Pat. No. 6,018,771 in view of Slemmer et al. U.S. Pat. No. 6,377,990.

6. As to claim 10, Hayden does not teach unassigned network address comprises an Internet Protocol address and wherein the connection comprises a Transmission Control Protocol connection.

However, Slemmer et al. teach unassigned network address comprises an Internet Protocol (i.e. IP) address and wherein the connection comprises a Transmission Control Protocol (i.e. TCP; inherent since internet uses TCP connection in general) connection (col. 2, line 58 – col. 3, line 22). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to combine the teachings of Hayden and Slemmer et al. because that would provide protection of individual computers from access by other computers on the network without requiring reconfiguration of the file sharing options on the computer (col. 2, lines 46-51).

Art Unit: 2182

7. As to claim 11, Hayden does not teach the network device comprises a headless network device.

However, Slemmer et al. teach the network device comprises a headless network device (i.e. one of various computers; col. 6, lines 45-53). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to combine the teachings of Hayden and Slemmer et al. because that would provide a local area network that does not require the user to reconfigure her computer address when she logs onto the network (col. 2, lines 43-46).

Allowable Subject Matter

8. Claims 12-20, 22 and 24 are allowed.

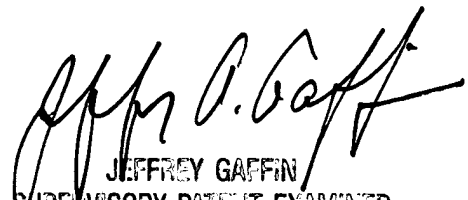

9. Claims 3-9 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Art Unit: 2182
